The Inquisition arrived in Buenos Aires at an exhibition showing atrocious torture instruments

Until the beginning of 2013, an exhibition will show many old instruments the inquisitors used to force confessions through torture from those accused

Since last weekend through the beginning of 2013, at Callao 800, in the downtown of the city of Buenos Aires, an exhibition will show many of the old instruments used during the inquisition to force confessions through torture from those accused.

Some are original versions, others are amazing copies made with old materials selected by qualified collectors and now shown in the exhibition sponsored by the Ministry of Italian Cultural Heritage.
